Introduction

Greetings and welcome. During my time as a society herald I've found people sometimes get overwhelmed by the process of designing a device and often give up as they have no idea of what they want or what they can register. Also, recently I have emblazoned a number of devices for several online Rolls of Arms for various SCA groups. From this I now have a greater appreciation for period style devices as I can tell you with great confidence, there are some very weird and bizarre devices have been registered in the past and. So in an effort to try to help design a device and encourage people to register, and register more "period style" devices, I have compiled this book to show some examples of what "period style" is and as catalogue that a person can browse and "pick" a device or at least get ideas for their device.

This book contains over 1300 blazons and emblazons of period devices taken from a number of period rolls of arms that I found on Brian Timms early rolls of arms website (www.briantimms.com/era/early rolls of arms.htm). They are all black and white out line as I am more concerned with showing the layout and design of the device than the colouring. The book is split into two sections.

The first section contains devices that are compatible with SCA heraldry. They all should be registrable when appropriately coloured (barring conflict with already registered devices). Under each emblazon is the balzon with the colours/furs etc... removed. This is followed by a period example, who it belonged to and from which roll it is taken.

The second section contains devices that are "illegal" under the College of Herald's rules of submission. In addition to the blazon information (as in section 1), each one is followed by (in bold italics) the rule that it contravenes. The full explanation of the rules of submission concerned is in the appendix that follows this section.

I have rendered these emblazons using a set of blanks I created as well as free clipart from the web. While I have made every effort to emblazon these devices correctly some emblazons may not match the blazon correctly. Also to make some devices "SCA Legal" I have removed the labels and crowns from the final emblazons, but I have left them in the period blazon as some people may want to draw them back (hey Massaria ;-)). These emblazons are not meant to be used as templates to be traced. If you are after just such templates may I recomend Hirsch von Henifords teplate site on the West Kingdom Herald's web site.

Remember - it is always a good idea to consult with a herald before submitting a device.

This book is supplied free of charge and may be freely copied and distributed. It is not to be sold for profit.

I hope to update this book on a semi-regular basis, so if you would like to know when it is updated or if you have any feedback please feel free to email me - smay1986@bigpond.net.au

PART XI - PRESUMPTUOUS

Armory may not claim status or powers the submitter does not possess, as is required by General Principle 3b of these rules. This section defines categories of presumptuous armorial claims.

1. Reserved Charges. - Armory that contains elements reserved to or required of certain ranks, positions, or territorial entities, inside or outside the Society, is considered presumptuous. Symbols reserved or required solely inside the Society may only be registered to those entitled to the status associated with those symbols.

Examples of such elements include the field Azure, semy-de-lys Or, which is restricted to French royalty; a laurel wreath, required for official Society branches; the knight's annulet of chain, etc. Lists of these charges can be found in the glossary. Some elements, like the French royal field, are always restricted. Others are limited to specific segments of the Society. For example, individuals may not place laurel wreaths on their armory, while only those who are royal peers may use the insignia of those ranks.
2. Charge and Name Combination. - Armory that asserts a strong claim of identity in the context of the submitter's name is considered presumptuous.

Some otherwise permissible names and armorial elements cannot be used together because joining the two creates too strong an association with famous individuals from myth, literature, or history. For example, while Rhiannon can be used as a given name, and horses can be used as charges, the two cannot be used together as it suggests the Rhiannon of Welsh myth. Similarly, charges that merely allude to a specific name on their own may become presumptuous if several such charges are used.
3. Marshalling. - Armory that appears to marshall independent arms is considered presumptuous.

Period marshalling combined two or more separate designs to indicate descent from noble parents and claim to inheritance. Since members of the Society are all required to earn their status on their own merits, apparent claims to inherited status are presumptuous. Divisions commonly used for marshalling, such as quarterly or per pale, may only be used in contexts that ensure marshalling is not suggested.

 - a. Such fields may be used with identical charges over the entire field, or with complex lines of partition or charges overall that were not used for marshalling in period heraldry.
 - b. Such fields may only be used when no single portion of the field may appear to be an independent piece of armory.

No section of the field may contain an ordinary that terminates at the edge of that section, or more than one charge unless those charges are part of a group over the whole field. Charged sections must all contain charges of the same type to avoid the appearance of being different from each other.
4. Arms of Pretense and Augmentations of Honor - Armory that uses charges in such a way as to appear to be arms of pretense or an unearned augmentation of honor is considered presumptuous.

Period and modern heraldic practice asserts a claim to land or property by surmounting an individual's usual armory with a display of armory associated with that claim. Such arms of pretense are placed on an escutcheon. Similarly, an augmentation of honor often, though not necessarily, takes the form of an independent coat placed on an escutcheon or canton. Generally, therefore, a canton or a single escutcheon may only be used if it is both uncharged and of a single tincture. For example, Argent, a fess gules surmounted by an escutcheon sable charged with a roundel argent has the appearance of being arms of pretense or an augmentation. Or, in saltire five escutcheons sable each charged with three roundels argent does not have this appearance, as it has multiple escutcheons, as so is acceptable. The exception to the restrictions of this rule is when the submitter is entitled to an augmentation as described in RfS VIII.7. Augmentations of Honor.
